to take up projects for the 7 States of the NE which were geographically contiguous and primarily such projects which were inter-State, such as power projects and inter-State road projects, were funded by it. It was also noted that though outside NEC, Sikkim has been enjoying the advaniage of being treated as a Special Category State in the matter of Centra! assistance. The Government of Sikkim again took up the matter for recu|nside. .rtion {of Government of India on the gorund that Sikkim is also a backward State and has similar tribal problems :'s in the States of the NE. The matter tv i"s referred to the NEC for their comments. The NEC has, in its 38th Meeting held on 17 November, 1994 at Guwahari, decided to recommend in favour of inclusion of Sikk'm in the NEC subject to adequate additional proportion'ite allocation of fund to the Council. NEC has been taking up regional and inter-State project such as in the field of power and road construction for the benefit of the State of the North East. As the recommendation of the NEC is conditional, being subject to adequate additional proportionate allocation of funds 1o the Council, the reeonimendatoin of the NEC will need to be examined inter-alia in the context of additional requirement and availability of funds. Any change will also require amendment of the North Eastern Council Act, 1971.
